Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra donates 301 Duke Energy Yuletide Celebration tickets to families at Riley Hospital for Children

ISO string trio Time for Three will deliver tickets and perform at the hospital on Monday, Dec. 3 at 2 p.m.

INDIANAPOLIS – As a result of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra's "Buy a Ticket, Give a Ticket" match promotion last weekend, 301 Duke Energy Yuletide Celebration tickets will be donated to the families of Riley Hospital for Children at Indiana University Health.

On Monday, Dec. 3 at 2 p.m., violinists Zach De Pue and Nick Kendall and double bassist Ranaan Meyer of Time for Three, the ISO's resident ensemble, will be delivering the tickets and performing in the Simon Family Tower Lobby for the patients, families and staff at Riley Hospital for Children.

Media are invited to attend Time for Three's 30-minute performance.

Time for Three

What started as a trio of musicians who jammed together backstage at Philadelphia's Curtis Institute of Music evolved into Time for Three — a charismatic ensemble with no musical boundaries. Violinists Zach De Pue and Nick Kendall and double bassist Ranaan Meyer carry a passion for improvising, composing and arranging. As the first-ever artists-in-residence of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, Time for Three brings its unique sounds, innovative compositions and lively performances to the Indianapolis community – in the Hilbert Circle Theatre and throughout the city. The group takes a lead role in the symphony's new audience engagement initiatives, community outreach and student mentorship programs and in 2011, was given a Cultural Vision Award by the editors at NUVO for its efforts.
