Indianapolis Symphony Society Annual Meeting Highlights Artistic Achievements, Fiscal Year 2019 Operating Results

(December 2, 2019) – With attendance nearing 300,000 patrons for Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra concerts, the Indiana Symphony Society (ISS) reflected on a year of evolution and focus on the future as it released its audited financial results during its Annual Meeting held Monday at the Hilbert Circle Theatre.

- Celebrating a 10-year partnership with Printing Partners as sponsor of the Pops Series.
- Becoming the first orchestra to perform the entire Harry Potter film franchise, following the 8-movie saga to completion in the Bank of America Film Series.

- Continuing to support the growth and success of more than 200 Metropolitan Youth Orchestra students and their families.

In addition to the remarkable success of the ISO’s Metropolitan Youth Orchestra, the ISO expressed its commitment to deepening its community engagement in 2020:

- The ISO has begun a journey to thoughtfully address gaps in Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) and determine how our community can work together to find solutions. Thanks to a grant from the Catalyst Fund, diversity training sessions are available to staff, musicians, and board members; the ISO has also engaged a specialist to assist in these crucial first steps of the conversation.
- Kroger Symphony on the Prairie patrons will experience an even more family-friendly atmosphere, as children under 12 will receive free admission with an accompanying adult.

Fiscal Year 2019 Financial Summary

- Ticket sales revenue passed $11 million for the second year in a row.
- Annual fund contributions totaled $8.4 million.
- Total operating income for FY19 was $27.4 million, with audited results reporting a general operating loss of $751,000.
- Overall attendance totaled 297,899 patrons.
- More than 13,000 new households attended ISO concerts during FY19.
At the meeting, CEO James Johnson commented, “last summer, we began an unprecedented program to evaluate and, as needed, change every aspect of the way we do business. As a staff and board, we are engaged in better planning, collaboration among and across departments, open communication, greater accountability, and fiscal transparency. Our financial reporting and planning will take a heightened priority to assure that we are thoughtful and disciplined in continuing our tradition of providing the highest caliber performances throughout this remarkable community.”

“We are confident these changes will allow us to better anticipate challenges and take advantage of opportunities in the current fiscal year and for the long-term strength and stability of our organization,” Johnson stated.

Johnson previewed meaningful additions coming to ISO: a new concertmaster could be named as soon as early in the new year, and the search is beginning to identify the successor to ISO Music Director Krzysztof Urbański, whose esteemed tenure will conclude following the 2020-2021 season.

“With our Senior Management Team now fully in place, and the support of our board directors, musicians, staff, volunteers, donors, and patrons, I look forward to taking the necessary steps to secure this treasured institution so that it can serve our community for many years to come.”
